FRENCH DUTY ON CORN

Republican Senators to Be Seated.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

A Michigan State Officer Becomes Insane.

Hon. David Dudley Field on Primaries.

Proceedings of Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—McCreary of Kentucky, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported a resolution requesting from the President any correspondence with the Mexican Government in regard to the employment in the regular army of Indian scouts for the purpose of pursuing any hostile Indians in their raids into the territory of the United States; and any correspondence in regard to the proposed transfer of the Apache and Chiricahua Indians from Mount Vernon Barracks, Ala., to Fort Sill, Indian Territory. Adopted.

The morning hour was consumed in a discussion of the bill for the compulsory attendance of witnesses before the Registers of Land Offices, which was passed.

The House then, in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the public building measures.

The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, after a long session to-day, finally reached a decision in the case of the contested Montana Senators, and, by a party vote, decided to recommend to the Senate that Power and Saunders, the Republican Senators, be seated.

Union Pacific Matters—Field on Primaries.

BOSRON, March 8.—President Adams of the Union Pacific says no meeting of western presidents has been called. Adams is not yet prepared to State the position of the company in relation to the funding bill.

In a speech at the Massachusetts Reform Club dinner last night Hon. David Dudley Field said on the subject of honest government, that primaries for the choice of candidates were very unsatisfactory in places where the registry held that each voter, when registering, should name his candidates. If no registry, they should be called on to express their preference in writing, the ones having a plurality to be nominated. He would make as many voters as possible take part in the nominations and would make all vote. Compulsory voting is as necessary as compulsory education.

Buying Pacific Railroad Sinking Fund Bonds.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Acting under the opinion of the Attorney-General, that he has secretory power in the matter, Secretary Windom has begun the purchase of Pacific Railroad sinking bonds and the investment of the proceeds in the first mortgage bonds of the subsidized roads. The purchase for the present will be confined to Government 4 per cent. bonds, of which there are now available $4,500,000. The amount of these already purchased is $700,000, and the proceeds were invested in the mortgage bonds of the Union Pacific road.

An Import Duty on Corn.

PARIS, March 8.—The Customs Committee of the Chambers has voted to impose three francs on foreign corn and five francs on corn flour.

A Railroad Lease.

CHIPPWA FALLS (Wis.), March 8.—President Oakes of the Northern Pacific, who is here, states that the lease of the Wisconsin Central to the Northern Pacific will be signed very soon. He denied the report of the Northern Pacific's negotiations for control of the B. & O. R. R. Oakes and party left this morning for the Pacific slope.

A Defunct Hotel Firm.

BOSRON, Mar. 8.—The creditors of Purnard & Mann, the lessees of the Parker house, held a meeting last evening. While no definite settlement was made, propositions were submitted by the debtors looking to an agreement. Aggregate liabilities are $315,000; assets nearly $200,000.

A Defaulting State Treasurer.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 8.—The committee to investigate the affairs of the State Treasurer finished counting the cash and found it $10,000 short. They express the opinion that an examination of the books and papers will increase this to over $20,000.

Business Students.

PIAQUE, March 8.—A number of students assembled in the streets here and marched to the houses of several old Czech professors and acted in a riotous manner. The soldiers charged the students with fixed bayonets and dispersed them.

An English Race.

LONDON, March 8.—The Kempton Park March meeting champion hurdle handicap of two miles over eight hurdles was won by Theodilite, Papyrus second and Castilian third.

Successfully Launched.

CHESTER, Pa., March 8.—The U. S. gunboat Concord was successfully launched this afternoon at Roache's shipyard. The launch was witnessed by many people.

An Insane Law Officer.

IONIA, Mich., March 8.—It is announced here that Attorney-General Trowbridge will be compelled to resign his office on account of insanity.

Bar silver 95%.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

BREVITIES.

The old Fair grounds are for sale—see 50-cent ad. in to-day's GAZETTE.

Colorado capitalists are said to be investing heavily in Salt Lake real estate.

Bill Nye is due here to-morrow, and will continue on to the Bay, where he is to deliver a course of lectures.

Tim O'Keefe has removed the burned roof of the Grand Central Hotel, preparatory to putting on a full third story.

The band of the Postage Stamp Comedey Company paraded the streets this afternoon, and discoursed some exceptionally fine music.

This has been a day of a succession of snow-squalls and sunshine, and as the GAZETTE goes to press the same kind of weather seems to be still coming.

The Board of Prison Commissioners.

The Board of Prison Commissioners have placed the State Prison grounds, just below town, at the disposal of the University, to be used for the experiments they are making.

A Step to be Retegretted.

The GAZETTE understands that for want of adequate means to pay current expenses, purchase the necessary new books and renew magazine subscriptions, and the further fact that the owner of the library rooms has increased the rent, the trustees are thinking of closing the Reno Public Library. Should no plan be devised to give them material aid, the library will be closed at their next meeting, to take place next Monday evening. Such a move should not be allowed, for the Public Library has done much good.

The State Board of Trade.

The State Board of Trade held another interesting meeting to-day. H. M. Yerington, Hon. Evan Williams, Hon. W. E. Sharon, L. A. Blakelee and George Turrittin were present at the meeting.

Properly Treated.

Speech.

The transition from long, lingering and painful sickness to robust health marks an epoch in the life of the individual. Such a remarkable event is witnessed in the recovery and the agency whereby the good health has been attained is gratefully blessed. Hence it is that so much is heard in praise of Electric Bitters. So many feel they owe their restoration to health to the use of the Great Alternative and Tonic. If you are troubled with any disease of the kidneys or liver, or stomach, or long or short, standing you will surely find relief by the use of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50c and $1 per bottle at W. F. Plummer's drug store.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. WINDLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

To Stockmen and Ranchers.

J. Westlake makes men's heavy French kip shoes fast to order for $5.00. Try a pair.

Repairing neatly and promptly done.

AN EASTERN STORM.

The Funeral of Mr. Pendleton.

THE FRENCH IN A TIGHT PLACE.

American Evolutionary Squadron at Naples.

Respected by All.

CINCINNATI, March 8.—The funeral services over the remains of the late Hon. G. H. Pendleton were held this morning at Christ Church, and were attended by the family and friends only. Meanwhile the cortege was formed to escort the remains to Music Hall. It consisted of a detachment of police, the First Regiment of Ohio National Guards, and Governor Campbell of Ohio and staff. The hearse was surrounded in a hollow square by the members of the old Woodward Club.

Carriages containing the family and friends, Mayor Mosby, Governor Buckner of Kentucky, ex-President Hayes, ex-Governors Fowler, Cox, Noyes and Bishop, ex-Minister Taft, ex-Lieutenant-Governor Lyon, the municipal officers of Covington and Newport, the foreign consuls, a long line of civic associations, and all the political clubs of both parties, followed the remains.

On the arrival at Music Hall the casket was borne to the catafalque in front of the stage. The hall was beautifully draped with national emblems and palms.

Conspicuous among the flowers was a wreath in German colors, placed there by C. Pollier, the German Consul at Cincinnati, as a token of the love of the German people for Mr. Pendleton.

After the services the casket was followed by the family and friends to Spring Grove Cemetery, where the interment was made.

What Became of the Records.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Michael Corcoran of Lincoln, Neb., has written a letter to the Inter-Ocean and explains why the books and checks of the Irish Land League were not produced before the Times-Parnell Commission in London. Corcoran says Patrick Egan left these papers with him in the Hibernian Bank of Dublin, on January 15, 1883. Subsequently Egan left for America, and it seemed best to him (Corcoran) to have the books and checks burned, though Egan, in a note, had assured him that there was no treason in them. Corcoran says it was his own thought to burn them, without any suggestion from anybody else, and if it was a fault, it was his alone.

In a Critical Condition.

PARIS, March 8.—Advices from the west coast of Africa state that the position of the French in Dahomey is critical. Baoul, the French agent, demands that 3,000 men be sent to defend that post, and declares that, if an expedition to Agbome, the capital of Dahomey, is undertaken, a further force of 4,000 men will be necessary. He considers that the attempt to conquer Dahomey would prove futile. He holds that it would be preferable to secure French rule on the coast.

Heavy Snowstorm.

BANGOR, March 8.—The Canadian Pacific express is stuck in the snow near Lake Onway. Many passengers are on board. The train blockades the line, and all traffic is interrupted. There has been a very heavy fall of snow from Greenville to Mattawamkeag, and some of the drifts are twenty-five feet deep.

Later advices are to the effect that the train was released after a short delay.

Hunting a Murderer.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 8.—Four French detectives have arrived here in pursuit of Eyraud, the assassin of Gouffé, the Paris Marshal, whose horrible murder in last July created a sensation throughout France. They are looking for the murderer in this city and Puebla.

American Men-of-War.

LONDON, March 8.—The American Evolutionary Squadron has arrived at Naples.

A Heavy-Weight Wrestler.

CLEVELAND, O., March 7.—Peter Jackson's party arrived to-day. Parson Davies denied the story that Jackson was nearly knocked out at Troy by Lambert. The latter, he said, is a professional wrestler, weighing 240 pounds, who went in to get the $100 promised to any one who stood before Jackson four rounds. "He didn't fight," said Davies; "he rushed in and grabbed Jackson around the waist and tried to throw him. In fact, all Lambert did was to run around the stage, trying to keep away from Jackson, and when he failed in that he would duck his head, rush in and catch Peter around the waist."

Enforcing the Law.

W. D. Jones, District Attorney of Lander, has published a warning to merchants in reference to selling tobacco or cigarettes to minors under 18 years of age, which is a violation of a plain statute. It is an indictable offense either to sell or give tobacco or cigarettes to such minors, and any one who does it is liable to the penalties of the law.

BETTER DONE BY SENDING

The First Degree.

An especially significant phase of the opposition to protection just now quite prominent, is the demand for "free raw materials." This is the first degree to which the free-trade neophyte is introduced, and in which he is expected to become proficient, preparatory to assuming the more advanced attitude of the Cobden Club and the representation in the United States.

Demand for "free raw materials" serves well for a rallying cry, because of its ambiguity. It is sufficiently flexible to suit the most fastidious voter, provided he should not be too inquisitive.

So long as he is not called upon for particulars, our tariff reformer gets on swimmingly. Force him, says the American Economist, to enumerate those materials he would include in the proposed exemption from duty, and it will be found that his logic followed to its legitimate conclusion, at absolute free trade in nearly every article competing with the products of domestic manufacturers. In the iron industry not an article short of the very best product would escape; while with dry goods, only ready-made garments and fabrics requiring no further manipulation to fit them for use would be exempted from the comprehensive list. For in the entire range of manufactured products there are but few that do not become the base, the "raw material," of some more advanced industry.

In the case of clothing, the finished cloth is the raw material of the tailor, wool of the weaver, corn and grass of the sheep owner. In iron, ore comes to the smelter, pig iron to the maker of bars, and these in their turn to the makers of cutlery, machinery and other articles, many of which—such as nails, hinges, gas pipes, etc.—are but auxiliary to the business of workers in other industries.

The cry for "free raw materials" is a drag net, just now most persistently manipulated by free-traders for the capture of recruits to the Cobden policy. In vain should it be set in the presence of intelligent voters.

The figures "400" appear conspicuously on the back of The North American Review for March. This venerable periodical, now well advanced in its seventy-fifth year retains all the freshness and vitality of youth. The latest number is specially noteworthy on account of most important discussions on two questions of the greatest moment to the people of the United States: The Gladstone-Blaine controversy on free trade or protection, which attracted so much attention in the January issue of the Review, and, which was continued by Representative Morrill of Vermont, well known as the author of the Morrill Tariff Act of 1861, which is still in operation, who replies to Mr. Gladstone's arguments in favor of free trade. Of perhaps greater interest at this time are the two articles on "The Limitations of the Speakership" contributed by Speaker Reed and ex-Speaker Carlisle. The writers may be considered the foremost experts in the country on the great question which has caused so much discussion in Congress for several weeks past. Of course, their views are diametrically opposite, but all fair-minded readers will read with equal interest what each of these champions has to say. As a supplement to Senator Morrill's article, there is an interesting paper by Samuel W. Mendum, Secretary of the United Question Clubs of Massachusetts, on "The Question Clubs and the Tariff."

THE REAL GENTLEMAN. Wherein He Differs from the Snob and the Parvenu. To a sensible woman a gentleman ought to be the equal of any one that wears a title, no matter what his rank or what his nation. To be a thorough gentleman is to be that which neither money nor estates nor insignia can buy. It is peculiarly a birthright. It is inherited in the blood and sure to make its appearance, even under the most unpropitious conditions. There is a sort of false gentility that is soon acquired and is affected by the snobs and the parvenus that have suddenly acquired riches. But this is a very cheap device in comparison with the genuine article. No one can be deceived by the counterfeit, because the mark of a real gentleman does not alone consist of entering a drawing-room gracefully or of making a bow in the proper form. These accomplishments may be necessary in order to help one to fix his position in polite society, but they are really nothing compared to those graces of mind, manner and morals that a true gentleman is sure to possess. A good definition of a real gentleman is one that adheres closely to the spirit of the wise utterances of the Saviour: "Therefore, all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." A strict following of this golden precept is indubitably better for the individual and society than all the finished bowings and scrapings under the sun.—Baltimore Sun

THE coming Congressional silver fight promises to be very interesting, and will afford the Democrats a chance of showing their hands. That a silver bill will pass, and more than likely the Jones bill, there can be no doubt, unless the Democrats kill it by tacking on an amendment that the Administration or the people of the East will not stand.

It is astonishing how sensitive human nature is to weather changes. On a dark and cloudy morning like this one is filled with evil forebodings—in fact, he is as blue as indigo. But let a bright, sunny day come, and he is as light-hearted and full of pleasant thoughts as can be. What better barometer do you want than your own feelings?

HUMOROUS.

—Hooker Crook (to chum)—"So you've been getting married during my absence—who was best man?" Hen Peck (sorrowfully)—"Maria."—Time.

—Waiter (at the club)—"There is a lady outside who says that her husband promised to be home early to-night." All (rising)—"Excuse me a moment."—Boston Budget.

—Van Walker—"Ah, old man, bought a new horse?" Van Rider—"Yes; spirited creature, don't you think so?" Van Walker—"He is certainly a rum-looking beast."—Munsey's Weekly.

—Notary Man (on railroad train, going west)—"Yes, sir, Bob. The place for the World's Fair of 1892 is Chicago, and don't you forget it!" Quiet Man (in seat behind, as conductor enters)—"Conductor, does this train stop at Chicago?"—N. Y. Weekly.

—Why have you such a complicated lock on your front door? A burglar can get in just as easily with that as he could with a simpler contrivance." "That's very true. Any burglar can get in, but woe be unto him when he tries to get out. Why, it takes me four minutes to unfasten that door from the inside."—N. Y. Sun.

—Managing Editor—"Did you pay the artist who illustrated that great poem, 'Christmas Chimes,' on your first page?" Secretary—"Yes, sir. Sent him a check for $250." "Good. How much did you pay the engraver?" "I sent him $75." "Yes. Is a good money left?" "About seventeen cents." "Very well; send it to the man who wrote the poem."—Philadelphia Record.

—Traveler—"See here, my friend, I noticed the way you threw that trunk around and smashed in four sides of it." Baggage Smasher—"Well, wot of it? A feller ain't got no time to handle de trunks wid gloves." Traveler—"Oh, that's all right; only I would like to make some arrangement with you. I am a trunk manufacturer, and business is a little slack just now."—America.

—Smith—"I am sorry, Jones, that I can't offer you any thing to drink." Jones—"Never mind me; it's a good idea not to keep it in the house." "But I do keep it in the house as a general thing, but Parson Purewater, my wife's uncle, a Prohibitionist lecturer, is visiting us, and—" "I see. You don't want to shock his sensibilities." "It ain't that; he drinks it all up. The last drop went last night after his lecture."—Texas Siftings.

—Brown—"How is it you are such a favorite everywhere you go?" White—"Oh, that's easy enough. Whenever any thing pleasant happens to me I keep it to myself, so as to make nobody envious; but all my miseries and misfortunes I tell to every body who will hear me, and you can't imagine how happy they make every body I tell them to. They say, you know, that misery loves company. I don't know how that is, but company loves misery, every time."—Boston Transcript.

—LITTLE WAX MATCHES. Made in Mexico by Girls Who Work for Twelve Cents a Day. George Morrison, formerly connected with the Mexican Central railroad, told me some interesting facts yesterday concerning the little boxes of wax matches which the small boys push under the nose of every man that gets off an "L" train at a down-town station.

"Those matches," he said, "are nearly all made in Mexico, and so cheaply that, after paying heavy duty, cigar dealers and others sell them at the cheap rate you see. In Mexico they sell at the rate of two boxes for one cent. There are about fifty matches in a box, and considering the care required in their preparation, this cheapness is wonderful. The body of the match is made with a cotton wick and wax, like a paraffine candle, with a colored mixture of phosphorus at one end for ignition. But this is not all the work. The little boxes, holding fifty of the matches, are complicated affairs, consisting of two peculiarly-prepared pasteboard cases, fastened together with rubber, with gay little pictures on both sides. These matches are made by Mexican girls at about twelve and one-half cents a day, and the machinery in the manufacturing is what we would call decidedly crude and unsatisfactory. How they make any money of them, or even get a living, is more than I can tell. But the little dealers seem to thrive by selling them at three boxes for a nickel. That does not bring them into much competition with our own manufacturers, and I guess none but smokers buy them."—N. Y. Star.

"Fader," said Rebecca Schneidbaum, counterfeiting a rosy blush. "Fader, Mr. Schopinger has just called. He is now in the parlor. He has come to ask for my hand—" "Ask for your hand, eh?" replied Mr. Schneidbaum excitedly. "Rebecca, take those diamond rings off before you go in. You can't let Gem go with the hand. He takes it without incumbrance—he takes it not at all."

Our Motto

"A dollar's worth for a dollar" is the motto of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This medicine is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla, and other well-known vegetable remedies, and is pronounced by experts the strongest and best preparation of the kind yet produced. It owes its peculiar strength and medicinal merit to the fact that it is prepared by a Combination, Proportion, and Process.

Peculiar to Itself, discovered by the proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and known to no other medicine. Its prompt action on the blood removes all impurities, and cures scrofula, salt rheum, sores, boils, pimples, all humors, and all diseases or affections arising from impure blood or low state of the system. "I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla, and find it to be the best blood purifier I have ever used." Mrs. H. FIELD, Auburn, Cal.

The Best Medicine. "I have used six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla for indigestion. It has helped me a great deal. I think it is the best medicine for indigestion and dyspepsia." Mrs. N. A. LAVERGNE, 128 North Fifth Street, San Jose, Cal.

CATARH.

Catarhal Deafness—Hay Fever A New Home Treatment. Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, and that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes. Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result of this discovery is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two weeks. N.B.—This treatment is not a snuff or an ointment; both have been discarded by reputable physicians as injurious. A pamphlet explaining this new treatment is sent on receipt of three cents in stamps to pay postage. A. H. Dixon & Son, 337 and 339 West King Street, Toronto, Canada.—Christian Advocate.

Sufferers from Catarrhal troubles should carefully read the above. Shaken Out of Gear. By malarial diseases, the human machinery cannot half perform its office. Digestion, secretion, excretion are disordered, the blood becomes watery, the nerves feeble, the countenance ghastly, sleep disturbed and appetite capricious. This is the disease, full of its consequences. There is, however, a known antidote to the malarial poison, and a certain safeguard against it. In the malarial regions of our South and West—in South America, Guatemala and on the islands of Panama, as well as in transitory localities where the scourge exists, this inimitable preventive and remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has, during the last thirty-five years, been constantly witnessing the area of its usefulness, and demonstrating its sovereign value. Liver complaint, dyspepsia, constipation, kidney trouble, rheumatism and debility are all remedied by it.

The Pulpit and the Stage. Rev. F. M. Shurt, pastor United Brethren Church, Blue Mound, Kansas, says: "I tell it my duty to tell what I see. Dr. King's New Discovery has done for me. My lungs were badly diseased and my parishioners thought I could live only a few weeks. I took five bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery and am sound and well, gaining 26 pounds in weight." Arthur Lore, Manager Long's Funny Folks Combination, writes: "After a thorough trial and convincing evidence, I am confident Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption beats 'em all, and cures when everything else fails. The greatest kindness I do my many thousands of friends is to use them to try. Free trial bottles at W. Plummer's drug store. Regular sizes 50c and $1."

Change of Business. Having this day purchased the jewelry business of I. Fredrick, I shall continue to carry on the same at the old established place. My personal attention will be paid to the business in all its branches, especially in the repairing of fine watches, jewelry etc. Hoping for the continuance of the liberal patronage bestowed upon the old firm, I am respectfully,
I. FREDRICK.
Reno, March 1, 1890.

Notice to Debtors. Notice is hereby given to all those indebted to the old firm of I. Fredrick, having this day sold the business, all outstanding accounts must be settled at once and so avoid the necessity of placing them in the hands of a collector.
I. FREDRICK.

STATE CANDIDATES.

Men Who Would Like to be Honored by a Place on the State Ticket. The Appeal publishes the following list of supposed candidates for office this fall:
Ormsby—Treasurer, Richards; Secretary of State, Helm; Attorney-General, Torreyson; Supreme or District Judge, Coffin; Congress or Supreme Judge, Bartine; Clerk of Supreme Court, Bicknell.
Storey—Governor, Wm. Sharon; Governor, Congress or Supreme Judge, Woodburn; Secretary of State, Haylow; District Judge, Rising; State Printer, Joe Eckley.
Douglas—Governor, T. B. Riekey; Lyon—Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dovey; State Printer, Fairbanks.
Esmeralda—Secretary of State, J. M. Donner.
Nye—State Printer, A. Maute; District Judge, T. H. Wells.
White Pine—Supreme Judge, J. P. Hawley.
Eureka—Surveyor-General, Jones; Supreme Judge, George Baker; District Judge, Cheney.
Elko—Secretary of State, William Rogers; Attorney-General, G. E. Talbot.
Humboldt—Secretary of State, Blakeslee.

A SOCIAL SESSION.

The Comedy at McKinnick's Opera House This Evening. The new musical comedy, "A Social Session," with its bright fun, catchy music and clever comedians, is a purely farcical comedy, ingeniously constructed to afford abundant opportunity for character sketches and the introduction of numerous specialties in which the entire company appears to good advantage. The idea of a heavy plot has not been taken into consideration. It is a melange of songs and dances, well chosen, connected by funny dialogues, and admirably serves the purpose for which it was intended—a good laugh. The people engaged to give life to the play are generally competent to be funny and know how to entertain. The Black Hussar band and Star Orchestra are excellent supplementary features. The company appear at the Opera House to-night, and should be greeted by a full house.

THE ICE CROP.

An Affecting Scene Among Men of the Same Calling. The Truckee Republican of the 5th inst. says: There was a big gathering of ice men in town Monday. At one time on Front street could be seen in earnest confabulation, James McDonald, Martin Sullivan, J. F. Moody, Warren Richardson, Dennis Burkhalter and Charles Painter. It looked like a called meeting of the Ananias Club. The absence of Dave Dyrast and James Crawford was all that was lacking to make the meeting complete. Of course they told how much ice each had put up and that not a single cake was less than 22 inches thick. They figured up their losses, which averaged from six to seven dollars a ton, and they sympathized with each other. It was an affecting scene.

PERSONAL.

L. A. Blakeslee of Humboldt is here to-day. S. F. Davis of the Carson Appeal was in town to-day. Hon. W. E. Sharon of Virginia is here to-day and attended the Board of Trade meeting. H. M. Yerington was over from Carson to-day and attended the State Board of Trade meeting. A. Massmeyer and Le Roy Coil of Woodland favored the GAZETTE office with a call this morning. W. J. Westerfield, D. B. Lyman and Hon. Evan Williams were in town to-day, attending a meeting of the Water Company.

Suicide by Cremation. The dead body of Andrew West was recently found in a cabin at Ellsworth, Nye county. Portions of it were burned to a crisp, and the surroundings indicated that deceased had committed suicide by self-cremation. He sold a mine at Lodi, in Nye county, several years ago, and received $5,000 as his share of the proceeds.

State Land Office. During the week ending March 7th six applications to purchase land were filed, embracing 640 acres. CASH RECEIPTS. Payments at time of application..... $240 00 Second and full payments..... 516 78 Payments on contracts..... 40 00 Interest payments..... 170 00 Total..... $966 80

The State to be Sued. Last Monday the Commissioners of Ormsby county paid all the claims due parties in that county on account of the special election. They did this on the advice of District Attorney Torreyson, who will now bring suit against the State for the amount of the bills.

Valuable Crop. Webster Trust informs the Woodland (Cal.) Mail that fifteen acres of California paper-shell almonds is as good as a $10,000 bank account, and will pay bigger interest. He thinks it ought to get an ordinary state family.

A Progressive Man. Hon. William Thompson paid $500 into the State Board of Trade fund to-day. A few such men as Mr. Thompson would soon bring the East to a realizing sense of Nevada and her possibilities.

Needs for Everybody. The GAZETTE's readers are placed under obligations to Senator John P. Jones for a sack of seeds sent this office, which will be distributed upon application.

BREVITIES.

Local and General Intelligence. The river is up. This is lonesome, depressing weather. The GAZETTE reports will ducks plentiful in Carson valley. Quite a number of Reno people went up to Verdi last night to attend the masquerade ball. George Humphrey shipped yesterday one carload of beef cattle to Truckee, and to-day he sent another load to Colfax. The GAZETTE is placed under obligations to Controller Hallock for a copy of the report upon the war claims of the State of Nevada. Henry Berry, Clem Lemery and George Hymers attended the ball at Verdi last night, and report having had a splendid time. The farmers on the meadows have all sold their hay and realized a good price for it. They are looking for a bountiful harvest this year. Until the streets of Reno are given a uniform grade they will continue to be the hog-wallow they are at present, whenever it rains or a water pipe bursts. Some of the horses in the south end of Carson valley are said to be suffering from a disease which resembles distemper, from which several have already died. The ball given at Verdi last night by the Verdi and Essex mill boys was highly enjoyable. Those who attended from Reno report having had a glorious time. See Hoy, the Virginia Chieftain who murdered his cabin mate a few days ago, has been examined on a charge of larceny and adjudged sane, and consequently will have to stand a trial for murder. This morning's Virginia Enterprise announces the death yesterday afternoon of Albert Ballard, who, four days ago, suffered such a terrible injury while descending the shaft of the Savage mine. He left a wife and several children. The petition that has been circulated to keep the Postoffice where it is seems to be worrying some people. So far as the GAZETTE is concerned it does not care a nickel where it is so long as it is centrally located, and it seems like a tempest in a teapot for any one to find so much fault. W. F. Patton was arrested yesterday for vagrancy and living about the homes of prostitutes, to which he pleaded guilty, and was sentenced this morning by Justice Young to sixty days in jail. Patton is a young man and has a wife, and better things might have been expected of him.

HIS NOTE ON DEMAND.

For the Balance of the Ten Children. Judge —, a well known, highly esteemed Knickerbocker, on the shady side of fifty, a widower with five children, full of fun and frolic, ever ready to give or take a joke, was bantered one evening by a Miss of five and twenty for not taking a wife. She urged that he was hale and hearty and deserved a matrimonial. He acknowledged the fact; admitted that he was convinced by the eloquence of his fair friend; and expressed contrition for the fault confessed, and ended with offering himself to the lady, telling her she could not certainly reject him after point out his obvious demand. "Well," said the Judge, "name it; my profession is to surmount obstacles."

"Ah, Judge, this is beyond your power. I have vowed that if ever I married a widow he must have ten children." "Ten children! oh that's nothing," said the Judge. "I'll give you five now and ten on demand, in installments, for the balance."

James P. Hixson, representing the merchant tailoring establishment of Gordon Bros., 13 Kearney street, San Francisco, has arrived in Reno, and will remain at the Palace Hotel a few days, and has on exhibition a full line of sample goods for gentlemen's wear, suitable for the present and coming season. Those wishing first-class custom-made clothing will do well to give him a call. He is the only scientific, practical cutter who has taken diploma in the principal cities of the east for correct measuring, skillful labor, perfect fit, and who is soliciting orders. There are a great many adventurers traveling who are not tailors and who do not represent a responsible house, and who cannot take a correct measure. Hoping that the public will encourage a scientific man to do his work, Mr. Hixson is recommended.

A Murderous Brute. A Sacramento dispatch of the 7th inst. says: Charles Freeman, who lives at Roseville, Cal., and who is regarded as a fighter and a worthless fellow, committed a murder at Twelve-mile House this morning. He was roaming around the House in a drunken frenzy when he found a man lying in bed whom he seized and dragged out in front of the house, where there is a trough for watering horses. Into this Freeman ducked the head of his victim and held him there until the man died. The murderer then went to Roseville, where he was arrested. The dead man was a cook employed on a neighboring ranch.

Honesty the Best Policy. The Truckee Republican says: Some one who has chanced to visit the Republican office recently has left a sack containing a sum of money on the editor's desk. If it is intended as a present we desire to thank the donor most sincerely. A new pair of pants at this time will fill a long-felt want. If the sack was lost we will gladly return it to the rightful owner, and keep the contents to pay for this notice. We believe honesty is the best policy.

San Francisco Meat Market. Following are the rates for whole carcasses from slaughterers to dealers: BEEF—First quality, 64c; second quality, 58c; third quality, 52c. PORK—Quotable at 61c for large and 58c for small. MUTTON—Quotable at 61c for large and 58c for small. LAMB—Spring, 12c; fall, 10c. FOWL—Live, 10c; on foot, 8c. DRESSED BIRD, 10c.

PUBLICATION OF SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE State of Nevada, in and for the county of Washoe. The State of Nevada, by its Attorney General, vs. Nona S. Hickman, plaintiff, vs. Nona S. Hickman, defendant. You are hereby notified to appear in an action commenced against you as defendant by Nona S. Hickman as plaintiff, in the District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the county of Washoe, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons (exclusive of the day of service), if served in said county, or ten days if served out of said county, but within said time, and in all other cases forty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. The said action is brought to recover against you a judgment and decree of divorce on the complaint of the plaintiff herein, in which complaint she alleges that you and she were united in marriage at Reno, in the county of Washoe, State of Nevada, January 27, 1888; that you and plaintiff have not lived or cohabited as husband and wife since about August 20, 1888; that you have not at any time since said marriage contributed to her support; that you went away from Reno, aforesaid, about the first of November, 1888; that you abandoned plaintiff about August 20th, aforesaid, and have not since said August 20th recognized her as your wife, that she charges against you abandonment and failure to support her and her children, and provides for her the common necessities of life for more than one year preceding her complaint made and filed, which she claims to support and provide for her is not a result of poverty that could not have been avoided by you by ordinary industry. She claims against you the custody of your minor child, on the ground that you are incompetent to care for him or to have dominion and control over him, and more fully appear from the complaint which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court at Reno, in said county, and to which you are especially notified.

A CURED HEARTACHE.

Oh, dear lost heartache—sweetest pain. When hours were weeks and weeks were years. And eyes had always room for tears.

How blest it was to pine and sigh. To wait for letters, sick at heart Of hope deferred—to kiss and part.

On dim street corners in the rain; To win a smile or madly feel A frown divide the soul like steel.

Oh, loveliest misery! Why, why Did we outlast that happy grief, Or make one darling pang more brief?

For now the days are simply—days. We part each morn, each night we meet; We kiss and yawn, we talk and eat.

In married life's calm peaceful ways— But, oh, for those dear woes abjured, And the sweet heartache that is cured!

A SPECTRAL TRAGEDY.

Strange, Weird Experience in the Far West.

In the summer of 1873 I was thirty years of age—in perfect health and of steady nerve. I was no believer in the uncanny—hardly in the supernatural—and had always poo-pooed at tales of ghosts, phantoms and visions of all sorts. But at the time mentioned above the experience I am about to relate put my intellect and sensibility to test in such a manner as to make me sparing henceforward of ridicule and forced me to find a place in credence for the possibility of apparition.

It is unnecessary to explain how I came to be traveling in the far West without companions, except for horse and dog and gun. Following the general route of the old overland trail, I camped one night in the edge of a considerable forest and at a point from which I could look forth over a broad, open plain.

It was already after sundown. The good horse was picketed, and, having provided a supper for myself and the dog from a rabbit which my dog had brought down an hour or two earlier, I disposed things for the night, and, as the stars came out, lay down to sleep, comfortably rolled in a blanket.

It was probably in the small hours of night that I awoke and rose to a sitting posture. The moon was climbing the eastern sky, with not a feather of cloud in her course, and every object stood forth as clearly as in the day.

But it was not for me to contemplate in quietude the rare beauty of the night. In almost the first moment of consciousness my eyes fell upon a slowly-moving object in the distance. It was one of those canvas-covered wagons, the "prairie schooners" so familiar in the early days of overland travel to California.

It was approaching almost directly toward me and my curiosity was at once aroused. Why any one should be traveling thus and so late at night I could not imagine. The movement was heavy, as if the horses were jaded, and the man who walked by their side had a weary step.

Twenty minutes passed, the vehicle approaching nearer and nearer. Still on it came, until when about thirty yards from me it suddenly stopped, and the man looking about seemed to be considering the wisdom of making camp.

At this point I suddenly realized that the approach of the wagon had been utterly noiseless. Not a chuck of the wheels, not the sound of a step either of horse or man. And furthermore there was no indication that I had been discovered, although I should have been as visible to this man as he to me. What could this mean? Was I dreaming? No, I was never more awake. Was this hallucination? No, for the dog, who had been aroused by my movement in awaking, now raised his head in the direction of the new arrival and uttered a low growl. I laid my hand on him to keep him quiet.

The man now stood by the forward wheel, looking in at the opening of the canvas top, and though I heard no voice I imagined that he was speaking to some one within. A woman's head appeared and after a glance around gave a nod of assent and the man proceeded to unharness the horses and turn them loose to graze. Then, after a moment, in which he seemed to be anxiously surveying the trail over which they had come, he helped the woman to alight.

And now their movements greatly puzzled me. Walking to and fro they seemed to be searching for some particular spot of ground. As I said above, I had selected my camping-ground in the outer edge of the forest. They were moving about there amidst mingled shadows and moonbeams, but every motion was visible. Finally the woman pointed a space between two young trees, and the man after looking at it for a moment went to the rear end of the wagon and brought forth a spade.

With the edge of this implement he marked off a rectangular space about five feet by two, and began to dig. All this, let it be remembered, was in absolute silence. Here were apparently living beings, actively engaged, and not more than one hundred feet away, and yet no sound was borne to me on the quiet air.

By this time my curiosity had turned to marvel. Here was a contradiction of common sense! I could not believe that what I saw was real; these beings must be apparitions. And yet here by my side was the dog, as alert as I, and trembling with an impulse to investigate, while obedient to my hand of restraint.

The digging proceeded, and the soil being soft, some five feet of depth was soon reached and then the man threw out the spade upon the ground. The woman meanwhile had been plucking branches of evergreen, bringing them in armfuls and throwing them beside—"the grave," I thought. And now, with the utmost care and patience, the whole cavity was lined with these sprigs of evergreen, held in place by twigs thrust into the banks on either side.

This done the man sprang out. The two surveyed their work for a moment, and then, after gazing once more, as if in anxiety, over the route by which they had come, they approached the wagon. Having rolled up the canvas on one side they lifted out a small mattress, depositing it upon a blanket (which they had spread upon the ground.

The mattress was not without its burden. The beams of the full moon enabled me to see thereon a slight form—that of a little girl who had scarcely lived out three years. The pretty white hands were folded over the breast. Long golden curls fell upon the pillow. The face which I could see with astounding clearness was wonderfully beautiful in its aspect of innocence and wore a life-like smile, as if in answer to the radiant queen of the sky, who seemed to be smiling, too, as she looked steadfastly down upon the living and the dead.

The mother forthwith proceeded to arrange the spreads upon the child, tucking them and smoothing them down as if she were only putting her little one to bed, although while I heard no sob nor any expression of grief I could see that her breast was heaving with sorrow and her face was visited by tears.

The two now knelt on either side, kissing their darling many times and weeping over her, though trying apparently to comfort one another in their mutual wretchedness, if perchance there might come in their hearts a calm like that with which the moon was still sending down her beams to illumine the tearful scene.

Then laying hold of the blanket they carried their darling to the grave, and by the aid of the bridle-reins let the precious burden down into the place which they had so carefully prepared. Green boughs were scattered over her until they covered the beautiful form many inches deep, and then the clouds were gently replaced, and a little mound was heaped, and the child transferred from her mother's bosom to her grave at last, in the bosom of the greater mother—Earth. The two sad mourners knelt again beside the grave, and seemed to be engaged in prayer, lifting their faces now and then to the sky as if in its indefinite clear depths they saw the future hopes.

All this—though I still thought it unreal—had awakened in me the keenest interest and sympathy. But my attention was now suddenly diverted to a line of figures in the distance, somewhat beyond the spot where I had seen the wagon when I first awoke. These were horsemen, who came sweeping on at a rapid pace, as if engaged in eager pursuit. From the manner in which they rode I knew they were Indians. Ah! I saw it all now and understood why these spectral visitors had so often looked back apprehensively in the direction from which they had approached. These pilgrims across the plains had seen signs of savages and had used night to push on beyond their reach; if haply they might bury their dead in peace and find safety for themselves. But the foe had discovered their trail and followed them, bent on massacre.

I laid my hand instinctively on the rifle under the edge of my blanket that I might join in the defense, and was about to cry out in warning of the danger that I saw approaching, but instantly I bethought myself that this was unrealistic; a mere vision, calling for no practical action, and I might better let these shadows work out their tragedy to the end. I again restrained the dog, who seemed agitated, whether because he saw what I was seeing, or out of sympathy with my emotion—I know not which.

The two at the grave seemed unconscious of the threatened danger until their enemies were within a few hundred yards, when the man sprang up and lifted the woman also to her feet. They turned toward the wagon as if to gain its shelter and secure weapons for defense. It was too late. I saw flashes of fire and also a flight of arrows, still without a sound, however, to break the calm of the night.

Both the man and woman staggered as if wounded. They stopped and turned face to face, throwing their arms about each other as if realizing that this was their last embrace. Another volley, and still clinging to each other in the agony of death, they fell together upon the grave of their child.

The Indians were not long in completing their work. Then catching the horses and harnessing them into the wagon they hastened away, as though themselves in fear of pursuit. I watched them until they disappeared, and then was alone with my thoughts and the brilliant night.

I realized that I had seen a vision, and though I turned myself resolutely to rest my sleep for the remainder of the night was fitful and disturbed. When finally I awakened again the sun had risen, and under the influence of that great dispeller of illusions and in spite of the vividness of the night's experience I began to think that after all I might have been only dreaming, especially when I saw the space where I had seen the burial and the tragedy that followed was not open and clear but overgrown with brush and young trees.

Nevertheless, yielding to a curiosity of which I was meanwhile almost ashamed, I soon made my way up into the bushes. Parting these with my hands as I went forward, and scanning the ground closely, I shortly experienced a new shock of surprise. For there, in the exact spot marked by the night scene, was a little mound, and over it the remains of two skeletons.

And now for a retrospective fact which gave to this weird experience of the night a personal significance. While I was yet a lad in my teens my brother, twenty years older, had taken his young wife and only child and set out across the plains in pursuit of fortune. The mails had brought home tidings of the progress of their journey up to a certain point. Beyond this all trace was lost, and we never heard of them again.

I have not been able to account satisfactorily for what I have related. Was this an indubitable information vouchsafed to me from another world as to the fate of my relatives? If so, why was it reserved for this time and place? Was it impossible that I should have this vision elsewhere? And if this is the case, then why? Had nature photographed these tragic scenes and preserved their reflection, to reproduce them for an eye that was fitted by some occult law of sympathy to behold? Let the savants answer if they can—I can not.—Edward B. Payne, in Overland.

Get the Doves Mixed.
The wife of a Philadelphia veterinarian accidentally mixed her own prescription with one made out by her husband for a horse, and sent the wrong one to the druggist. She was horrified when she found that the druggist had sent her pills home in a cigar box, and frightened when she found each pill was larger than a plum.

LONDON, BANK TELLERS.

Experts in Handling Money—Features of the English System.

A London bank teller, says the Boston Commercial-Bulletin, always experiences a feeling of relief when he finds his money correct at the close of Friday's work, and this feeling is usually shared in by the rest of the staff, who do not leave the bank until he either discovers his error or satisfies himself as to the actual shortage. The great bulk of the shortages made across bank counters in England are believed to occur on that day.

Next in order of bad days for the teller, or cashier, as he is designated in London, comes Saturday, but there the bad luck is intelligible. Saturday is wages day, and no sooner has the teller filled his till and loaded up his shelves with silver in £5 and £10 bags than the day's work sets in like a flood. Until twelve o'clock he is paying away with both hands; after that hour, if he is a receiving clerk as well, he begins to receive heavily, for Saturday is also the last day of the week, and every one elects that the bank should receive his deposits rather than that he should keep them in his own less secure custody over Sunday.

In beginning work on Saturday the London teller faces an open mahogany counter, of which the portion controlled by his desk is probably six feet long by three feet wide. He is to have a good, square view of his customer, and it is one of the canons of British banking that the eyes of the staff shall command the counter. With such an open counter the chief clerk is able to keep the whole field under his eye at one time, and to relieve the overstrain at any particular desk. The effect of the exposed condition is beneficial, too, on the staff, the members of which preserve a steadier demeanor and attend more closely to business while under the eyes of the public.

The London teller is a quick manipulator of coin. This is largely owing to the fact that the smallest note issued in London is of the value of £5 or $25. When asked for gold in a greater amount than his eye can count at a glance, the teller, after counting it quickly with a planoforte motion, throws it with his copper scoop into his faithful scales, and so checks his count. The weights of these scales are arranged in suitable numbers. The teller also checks the gold which he receives by weight, and here his knowledge of his business will be tested. One hundred new sovereigns are of full weight, rather more, in fact, but the same number taken at haphazard will be found to be nearly half a sovereign (or 1/2 per cent.) short in weight, while 100 pounds sterling in ordinary half sovereigns are sometimes 20 shillings (or 1 per cent.) short in value. The teller can quickly satisfy himself as to whether the deficiency is caused by shortage in the weight or the count by dividing the amount and weighing one moiety against the other. If they balance evenly the count is correct, and the deficiency is due to underweight. If the latter exceeds the average stated the coin will need to be specially examined; there is probably something wrong.

The edge of the English bank counter is provided with a lip to prevent the coin from rolling over and to aid the teller in scooping up the money. The teller usually counts with the first two fingers of both hands, simultaneously; sometimes he uses six fingers, and a teller has been known to count four hundred and fifty sovereigns in one minute, working against time. An expert teller will count one hundred pounds sterling value of silver in seven minutes. When it is remembered that the coins are always mixed, and consist of sixpences, shillings, florins, half-crowns and crowns, with never a decimal convenience among them, this will reasonably be considered as a remarkable feat.

The annual loss from wear and tear of gold coin in England by reason of the absence of small notes is almost incredible. In Scotland the issue of one-pound sterling notes displaces gold to a great extent. The Scotch teller excels in counting paper money. In fingering a bundle of notes he is king of men. Placing the packets upright against his left arm, and holding the top corner between the finger and thumb of his right hand, he will turn over the notes so quickly that an ordinary observer will be as entirely deceived as by the three-card trick, and will probably count only sixteen or seventeen to the teller's twenty. Then, to check his count, he will either alternate his hands, or, placing the notes horizontally on his counter, he will count them toward himself with the same paralyzing speed.

The Scotch counter is twice as wide as the London one; it is elevated in the center and is minus the rim, which facilitates the English teller's dexterity with the coin. The Scotch teller in Edinburgh is called "his domain is a little island by itself, he takes no responsibility, he carries no balances in his head, and will not look at a check until the ledger clerk, far off in the corner, has countersigned it.

An advantage which the English teller possesses over the American and the Scotch teller lies in the fact that he issues clean notes only. The Bank of England has the exclusive privilege of note issues in London and within a radius of fifty miles, a right conferred for a certain valuable consideration granted to the Government in years gone by. All the notes received by the London teller are sent into the Bank of England, and they are not reissued. The average life of a five-pound sterling bank note is two or three weeks, that of a one-hundred-pound sterling bank note three days—that is, the interval between its issue and return to the bank for final death.

The Face of the Camel.
As a matter of fact, and in spite of its having carried Mohammed in four leaps from Jerusalem to Mecca, seven miles an hour is the camel's limit; nor can it maintain this rate over two hours. Its usual speed is five miles an hour—a slow pace beyond which it is dangerous to urge it, least, as Asiatics say, it might break its heart and die literally on the spot. When a camel is pressed beyond this speed, and is spent, it kneels down, and not all the whips in Asia will make it budge again. The camel remains where it kneels, and where it kneels it dies. A fire under its nose is useless.

MISCELLANEOUS.

AN OLD MAID'S SOLILOQUY.
"To take or not to take it, is the question—Whether it is better to end this earthly career a spinster—leaving the smiles of those who would insist—That she caused my lonely state—Or take the remedies my sisters take—And see my eyes grow bright as the old I bathed in the industrial pond I Leon sought in vain in Florida's peaceful shade—Of have heard my harp's sad story say (Don't that good old Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—Will bring back color to a faded cheek—Restore the health of one who faint would die—To rid herself of all the pains she feels—)
